

Many Angels Reaching You

The Mary Madeline Project was founded in memory of Madeline Marie Erickson who died at seven weeks of age and in honor of all the babies before and after her that have touched our lives.

The Mary Madeline Project is a non-profit organization that donates infant burial gowns and blankets to hospitals. They are given to Neonatal Intensive Care Units for babies who die in the neonatal period. They are also given to labor and delivery units for stillborn children. Our goal is to provide comfort to grieving families. It is very difficult to have to shop for a burial outfit when a baby dies. For premature babies, it is often difficult to find something small enough.

Lovingly made from donated wedding gowns, the burial garments are a gift to the grieving parents who must dress their little ones. Many of the volunteers who make these garments have lost children, grandchildren and siblings. As a result many garments are made by those who understand the pain and sorrow of losing a precious Angel.

We put memory tags in all the little burial outfits. So along with your donated wedding gown you can enclose a list of your deceased loved ones, and all the outfits made from your dress will be made and donated in their memory.

The Project is comprised of volunteers who sew, crochet, knit and deliver the gowns. If you are interested in donating a wedding gown, or would like to sew, crochet or volunteer please contact:
